

LOTUS IN IROKO

Long and sleek lines, its minimalist shape and size make it a natural fit for any style of landscaping. Truly charming, yet modest too. The body is made of Iroko, an exotic wood from Africa. This is an extremely hard, resistant wood that will stand up to exposure to water and humidity, earning it the nickname "aquatic wood". At a height of 1.30m, the wooden body is headed with a chrome brass shower column, fitted with a 15cm wide circular showerhead for the standard model. For a more modern finish, it can be replaced with a 20x20cm lime-resistant square head (other shapes and sizes are available). The fixed head is controlled by a ¼ turn faucet set.

The shower comes with a 15 cm x15cm backing support with 4 anchor points. The 75 cm x85cm shower platform is built into the body of the shower, but is removable. Connection of the pipe at the back base or underneath with a simple garden hose attachment or to an installed pipe system. The shower will be ready prepared accordingly.
